DOCTORAL RESEARCH SCHOLARSHIPS 2015 in Spatial, Performing & Visual Arts*Type:

Living allowance scholarship. Two scholarships are available to support doctoral research under the supervision of Dr Dorita Hannah, Professor of Interdisciplinary Architecture, Art and Design, in an area of existing and emerging research strength within the University of Tasmania's School of Architecture & Design as well as the Tasmanian College of the Arts with a start date of 2015 (within 6 months after notification).

Value & Duration:

This scholarship includes fees and provides $25,392pa (2014 rate) living allowance for 3 years, with a possible 6-month extension.

Closing date:

31 October 2014.

The Research Project: All excellent proposals will be considered, but preferential consideration will be given to the following areas of current research;

- Event-Space: Theatre Architecture and Cultural Environments
- Emerging Interdisciplinary Processes in the Practice of Spatial, Performing and Visual Arts
- Performance Design & Design Performativity
- Curatorial Practices: Installations, Exhibitions and Social Engagement in Public Art
- Performative Territories: approaches to (sub)urban and wilderness environments
- Online/Offline Platforms: technologies, media and globalisation
- What and Where is Public Space?
- Performances of Terror and 21st-century Spatiality
- Scenography/Theatre Design: Setting, Costumes and/or Mediality
- Politics and Practices of Embodiment: including fashioning and feasting

While pursuing research under supervision of academic staff, recipients of the scholarship will also be expected to contribute fully to the emerging interdisciplinary research culture of UTAS' Creative Exchange Institute (CXI), engaging with graduate modules, critical and reflective practice, and research-driven seminars, symposia, conferences and publications.

Eligibility:

The following eligibility criteria apply to this scholarship:
