Existence of contact structures

Fran Presas

ICMAT, Madrid

In 1966, Chern asked: What are the topological conditions for an odd dimensional manifold to possess a contact structure? In this talk, we review the most general existence results and outline the main obstacles to give a complete answer to the question. The main characters in the game have their origin in complex projective geometry: Lefschetz pencils and open book decompositions.