Conclusion: If students had to navigate the Faculty website to get the information about the course offer they will have access to, the schedules, language of instruction, etc. of each course.. They'd probably rather die.

So... the IRO way: Save students and our staff time...

By.. Providing helpful, simple, accessible and clear information!

4. Improving the experience if incoming students

Basics: Processes & Attention and Support

Processes: It is important to try to make processes as simple as possible. If a significant number of students fail to successfully complete a process, the process must be changed.

Attention and support:

Very important! A good feedback is basic in order to give a good service for incoming students.

4. Improving the experience if incoming students

A step further: Channels of Communication and Surveys

Channels of communication: alternative ways: tutorial videos, virtual meetings, etc.

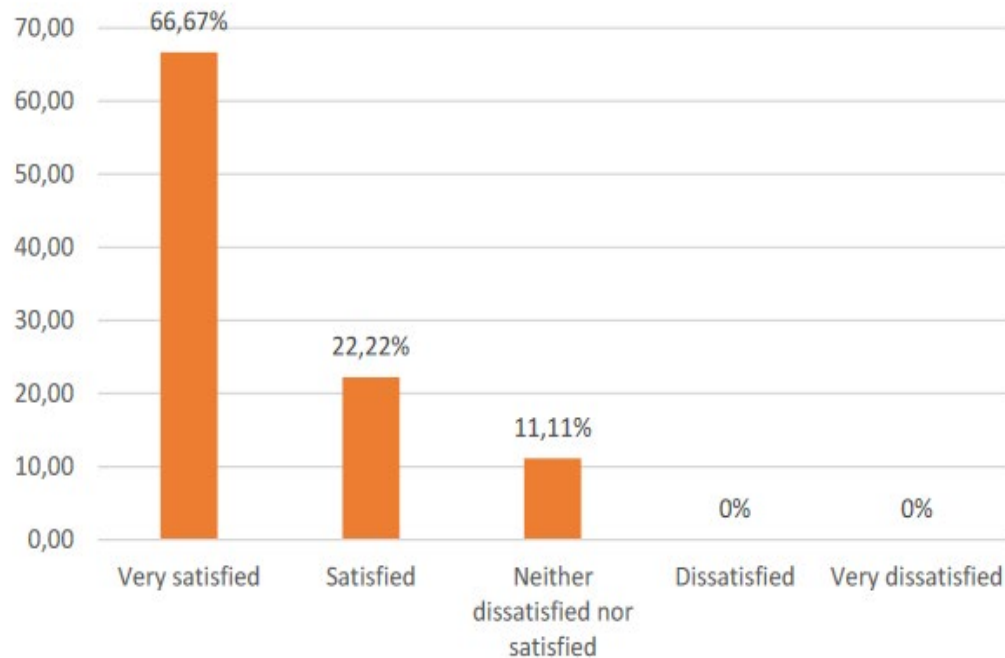

Surveys: They can give you valuable information on your strengths and on what to improve.

6. The experience of exchange students

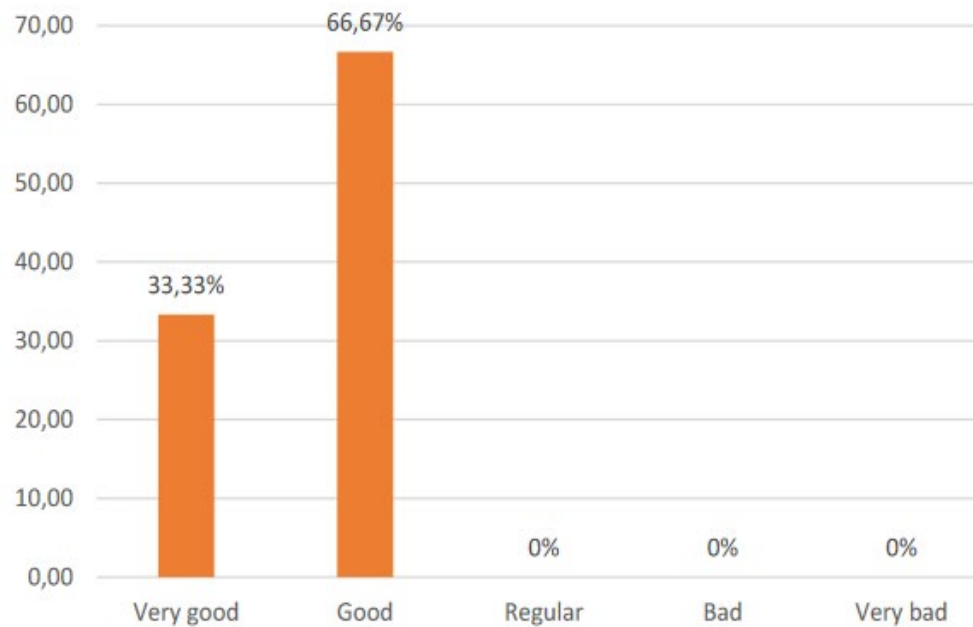

How satisfied were you with the way the International Relations Office dealt with any questions, complaints or problems that may have come up during your participation in the exchange program?

6. The experience of exchange students

Which is your overall evaluation of the International Relations Office (attention, communication, efficiency, etc.)?
